HAWAIIAN ISLES THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

McKinley Transmits to Congress Report of the Commission.

The Text of the Principal Bill Drawn Up by Them-It Is Thought It Will Best Promote the Interests of the People on the Islands.

day transmitted to congress the report of the ly the same as that of Great Britain in Hawaiian commission, consisting of Senators Cullom and Morgan, representative Hitt. President Dole and Justice Frear, of Hawaii, together with the text of bills drawn by the commission for the government of the islands as a portion of the United States. The preliminary portion of the report is mainly descriptive of the Hawaiian islands, the inhabitants, the existing institutions, the public | Chronicle says that "this matter will domain, productions, climate, harbors and shipping facilities, and various conditions of general interest. The remaining portion is mainly devoted to a discussion of the legislation proposed by the commission, giving in the appendix the various reports of sub-committees and copies of the bills suggested.

Three bills are formulated for the consideration of congress. The first and principal one outlines a general plan of government, and the other two deal with subordinate questions. Of the main bill the commissioners express the opinion that it will prove to be "Such a measure for the government of the Hawaiian islands as will best promote the interests of their people at the same time that it promotes the interests and maintains the sovereignty of the people of the United States."

It provides for the erection of the islands into a territory of the United States, to be styled the Territory of Hawaii. The bill contains provisions for the government of the have interfered actively." territory, giving it executive, legislative and judicial officers. A governor, secretary of the territory, a United States district judge, a United States district attorney and a United | An Early Debate Expected in the House in States marshal are to be appointed by the president, and an internal revenue district and a customs district are created. The offices of president, minister of foreign affairs, finance, public instruction, auditor general, deputy auditor general, surveyor general and marshal are abolished. The officers of the territory of Hawaii, with a few exceptions; duties to the present minister of finance, and such powers and duties regarding licenses, corporations and companies and to partnerships and registration of prints, labels, of and trade marks as are now possessed by the minister of the interior, except as changed. also a superintendent of public works, a superand duties of a surveyor general, and a chief sheriff to succeed to the duties of marshai of the republic, all to be appointed by the

of two houses, a senate, to consist of 15 members, as at present, and a house of representatives, consisting of 30 members, double the membership of the house under the Hawaiian republic. The members are to be elected at a general election to be held on the Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1899, and biennial thereafter. The supreme court is to be the sole judge of the legality of election to a seat in either house in case of contest. No member of the legislature is to be eligible for appointment or election to any office of the territory, and no officer or employe, notary public or agent of the territory is to be eligible to election as a legislator. There is also a provision that no person who, having been entitled to qualify and vote prior to October, 1897, and since July, 1894, failed to register as such voter, shall have a vote, unless he shall take an oath to support the constitution of the United States. The sessions of the legislature member is allowed $400 as salary and 10 cents a mile for traveling expenses.

Main Questions Settled by the American and Spanish Commissioners.

Complete Are the Details of the Evacuation of the Philippines Stipulated That an Evacuation Commission Will Be Unnecessary.

PARIS, Dec. 7 .- The peace of Pari practically an accomplished fact. Tuesday's session disposed of the essential features of the treaty, which will be embodied in the following eight articles:

First-The customary preface of treaties in the nature of an expression of amnity and of hope for perpetual

Second-The relinquishment by Spain of her sovereignty over Cuba. Third-The withdrawal of the Span ish troops. Fourth-The relinquishment by Spain of her sovereignty over Porto

Fifth-Spain's cession of the Philip

Sixth-The withdrawal of the Spanish troops there. Seventh- Payment by the United States of $20,000,000 for the Philip-

Eighth-The provision for the "open door" commercial policy in the Philip-

The rough draft of the treaty which may be considerably changed, covers the proposals. It makes a long document, which Senator Cushman K. Davis, of the United States peace commission, says will be found to be one of the most interesting papers in its character ever written. So completely are be unnecessary.

Among the questions not yet settled, however, are the coaling station and religious freedom in the Carolines, the Spanish commission not having replied to the American offer. The Americans have agreed to transport the Spanish prisoners home, including the garrison and sailors at Manila, captured by Adm. Dewey and Gen. Merritt, as well as the soldiers and civilians held by the Filipinos, whose return the Americans have guaranteed.

As compensation, Spain promises to liberate all Cuban, Porto Rican and Philippine political prisoners. Spanish soldiers electing to remain in the colonies may do so, but it is more a matter of economy for the Americans to return the others, as they must be fed as long as they are kept and Spain is unable to bear the expense of the repatriation.

Also the Americans have rejected Spain's request for free shipping for ten years in Cuban and Porto Rican waters, they having given the Spanish commissioners such poor consolation as the latter may derive from the permission to reapply when the diplomatic | The Four Statues on the Confederate Solrelations have been renewed for shipping concessions under the reprocity scheme of the Dingley law, for which Senor Dupuy DeLome was negotiating in Washington when the war broke out. There are still under discussion eight secondary subjects which the Spanish commissioners broached last week, including the status of patents and copyrights. The American commissioners Tuesday handed to Senor Montero Rios a written reply covering these questions. There will probably be no joint session Wednesday, as the Spaniards desire time to consider this

SPIRITED DEBATE IN SENATE

Senator Hoar Objects to the Practice of Appointing Senators on Commissions-Should Not Hold Two Offices.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The senate had a long debate in executive session Wednesday upon the subject of confirmation of the Hawaiian commissioners. The debate was started by Senator Hoar, who made a vigorous protest against the practice of appointing senators upon such a commission. He said these senators were when appointed acting under the direction of and became the duly authorized agents of the president to carry out his ideas and wishes. What became of their functions as senators, he asked, when the report they make, as in the case of the Hawaiian commission, came before the senate, a co-ordinate branch of the government? In the case of the joint high commission now negotiating a treaty with Great Britain, and the peace commission now in Paris, there were the same objections, but applied with greater force. Senators should hold aloof from such positions because their acts as commissioners were to be passed upon by themselves as senators, a very reprehensible practice in the opinion of Mr. Hoar. He intimated that senators acting for the president as a commission, which, when dealing with a foreign country, had to act as a body, might be placed in the position of supporting a cause which they as senators would reject.

The method of appointing senators on commissions was defended by Senators Morgan and Platt, of Connecticut, who claim there was nothing inconsistent in so doing. The debate then became somewhat general, and the constitutional prerogatives of the president and the rights of the senate were technical phase of the subject.

opposition to the too free exercise by the president of the power of appointing senators to other positions. They pointed out that there was a law on the statute books inhibiting citizens from holding two offices with pay at the same time and insisted that such appointments were contrary to the spirit of American institutions.

Senator Aldrich was among those who contended for the right of the president to call into the service of the country the talents of senators and members of congress in other lines than those in which their offices indicated. The contention on this side was to the effect that the practice was an old one, and they cited a supreme court decision to show that two offices might be occupied by the same person in cases where the services did not

After two and a half hours of discussion the question was referred to the judiciary committee with instructions to investigate and report upon the nomination of the commissioners.

EX-BANK PRESIDENT MARSH Former Fugitive From Justice Pleads

Guilty in Court-Cashier Steele Also Arraigned Before the Bar.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 8.—In the United States district court Wednesday, Gideon W. Marsh pleaded guilty and was remanded by Judge Butler for sentence on Tuesday next. Marsh was the fugitive bank president, who returned on the promise that mercy would be shown to him. Marsh was president of the Keystone national bank, when it failed in 1891. He disappeared in May of that year, forfeiting his bond of $20,000. He remained a fugitive from justice until last month, when he suddenly returned and surrendered. It was believed that Marsh would make some sort of confession, but he did not do so. William Steele, former cashier of the Chestnut Street national bank, was also arraigned Wednesday. He pleaded not guilty to a charge of aiding and abetting the late William M. Singerly in misusing the bank's funds.

A MONOMANIACAL WITNESS.

His Peculiar Phase of Lunacy Was Developed During a Trial in Court.

"That calls to mind a queer experience of my own," said a lawyer who had listened to the story. "Some years ago I defended a fellow for murder in a little southern town. and the worst witness we had against us was an old German who was a stackbuilder by teachers. Gen. Henry holds the resigname for a big chimney. The old fellow was perfectly honest, and gave his evidence in such a clear, straightforward manner that l felt my client was doomed unless I could think of some way to break him down. While I was cudgeling my brains a friend whispered to me to ask him how high he could build a stack. 'What do you mean?' I asked, in surprise. 'Never mind,' said my friend, 'just slip in that question and see.' So at the tail end of the cross-examination I paused, as if struck by an afterthought, and said: 'You are a stackbuilder, I believe?' 'Yes, sir,' replied the witness. 'Well, sir,' I continued, 'about how high could you build—' I never got any further. A swift, inscrutable change flashed over the German's face, and he rose excitedly from his chair. 'As high as der sky!' he roared. 'So high dose angels come around it like birds!' In five seconds he was raving. You see, the man was a monomaniac—sane on every subject but one, and my friend happened to know his weak spot. It is hardly necessary to say that his evidence in regard to the homicide was promptly ruled out by the judge, and as there was no other witness of importance my man was cleared. The rascal should have been hanged, and would have been but for the lucky reference to the stack."-N. O. Times-Demo-

Expert and Able to Speak Intelligently.

Expert Stephen Little, who has just returned from an extended trip over the St. Paul, Burlington and Chicago Great Western systems, says: "No one who has not recently examined these properties has any idea of their value and infinite progress. The service on the St. Paul, Burlington and Chicago Great Western is unexcelled. There is nothing in the East to compare, much less to equal it, and it towers monumentally over any other transportation in any part of the world. The train service of these three corporations is superb. Until recently the Pennsylvania limited, out of New York, to Chicago, was believed to be ideal, but so thorough is the service of the Chicago Great Western, with the buffet cars, with their bulk heads, stained glass windows, and complete electrical equipment, that the Pennsylvania people have ordered their renowned 'Chicago Limited' into the shops that it may be rebuilt, or rather, modernized, after the cars that are in service on the Chicago Great Western. I think the future of this property is very great. The earnings are away ahead of what they were a year ago and the outlook is brighter."

Secretary of War Tells of the Work of His Department.

History of the Campaign Related Without Criticism-Credit of Victory Belongs to No One Man-Wants Army of 100,000 Men.

Washington, Dec. 3.-The annual report of Secretary Alger is a practically complete official history of the Spanish-American war. The secretary has given to the public not only all the official dispatches that passed directly between his own office and commanding officers in the field and camp, but has supplemented these with short explanatory notes setting forth the reasons for various movements, and then, to complete the record of events, he has included in the body of his report the report of Gen. Miles, of all the generals who participated in the campaign in Cuba, Porto Rico or the Philippines, and finally the reports of all of the bureau officers of the war department. Nowhere is there shown a disposition to criticise, the official dispatches being allowed to tell their own story, and generally the secretary finds much to praise and cause for sincere congratulation in the results obtained.

Had a Big Force of Surgeons.

The report proper begins with what may be described as a chronological history of the war, consisting of a number of short paragraphs, beginning with the declaration of war on April 21, and setting forth the date upon which any event of importance occurred, but making no comment whatever upon the facts. The only exception to this rule is in a reference to the casualtic at Santiago. Some criticism having been made that there was a lack of surgcons present, the report states that there vere 140 surgeons in attendance, and that of 1,431 wounded only 13 died of their wounds. Surrender of Santiago.

Touching the surrender at Santiago the report shows that Shafter demanded the surrender on the 3d, and renewed this demand on the 4th. On the morning of the it been strictly followed less sickness would 11th, another demand was made. On the evening of that day Gen. Miles arrived, and on the 13th and 14th of July, he, with Gen. Shafter met the Spanish commander under a rag of truce to discuss the surrender. On the afternoon of the 14th, Gen. Miles left Gen. Shafter's headquarters and soon thereafter went aboard ship preparatory to sailing for Porto Rico. July 17. Toral surrendered 23,000 men upon our terms and the American flag was hoisted by order of Gen. Shafter.

A Great Achievement.

The secretary, coming down in his history to the middle of August, when an order was issued and is now in execution to muster out 100,000 volunteers, says: "Thus an army of about 250,000 volunteers and recruits for the regulars was called into existence from civil life, and, including the regular army, the total force was 274,717 It was organized, armed, and equipped (no supplies being on hand other than those for the regulars, save Springfield muskets), and 50,000 men of this force were transported by land and sea to battlefields in the tropics 10,000 miles apart, where they won their victories without a single defeat, and all within the period of shop deals, four persons formerly besigning of the protocol.

To No Individual Belongs the Credit. "This great achievement can be credited to no individual; it belongs the nation. It was accomplished through the intelligence and patriotism ol all who served, from the commander in chief to the private in the ranks. It also speaks volumes for the prompt, patriotic and intelligent assistance of the people who furnished, in so federal law in this city, and the result short a period, the supplies necessary to prepare this great army for the field. To the heroic men who served in distant lands the country will ever offer a true meed of praise, but the mighty army in camp, ready and eager to take the field, should also be given equal credit. It was their presence, ready at an hour's notice , for any emergency, that overawed the enemy and proved to him that further resistance would be in vain.

Death Rate of the Army.

"The deaths in the army from May 1 to October 1, including killed, died of wounds and of disease, were 2,910, the smallest death rate recorded of any army in history, a remarkable fact when it is considered that over 50,000 of our troops, born and reared in the temperate zone, were campaigning in tropical climates, subject to rain and heat almost unprecedented "

The secretary says of the volunteers that to furlough them in winter would be a hardship, so he recommends that in lieu of the furlough the officers and men be given two months' pay at the time of their discharge, thus admitting of their prompt discharge in their present camps in the Wants Army of 100,000 Men.

Under the head of increase in the permanent establishment the secretary says: "Ir view of the needs of a military force in the islands occupied by the United States, it is earnestly recommended that the regular army be permanently increased to 100,000 men and the requisite officers; that a portion of this army be recruited from the inhabitants of those islands, to be mustered into the service of the United States, commanded by officers of our army, discretion. however, to be given to the president to make appointments of officers from the force so recruited.

"These men are acclimated, understand the language and habits of their countrymen, and their enlistment will not only give them employment but also have the tendency to enable the government to get into closer touch with their people than it Friday evening that no bench warrant day was the anniversary of the death This privilege is accorded to him in would otherwise be able to do. This would would issued for Gov. Tanner, at least of Gen. Antonio Maceo, and has been recognition of his distinguished serving in those climates to a large extent and not for the present. He stated as his would, moreover, enable the volunteers opinion that when the executive was to be rustered out of the service and return to the avocations of civil life.'

Another suggestion is that there should be employed in the United States service a constabulary force for the cities of Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines who have had the experience and can speak the language of the islands.

Relief for Cubans.

Secretary Alger thinks that the government will be greatly taxed to supply food. to the destitute, especially in Cuba. The to dwell in idleness, living upon charity. He says: "Would it not be wise economy for the government of the United States to construct a substantial railroad, practically the whole length of the island of Cuba, with branch roads to the leading cities on the coast? Such a road would, of course, cost a large sum, perhaps ,20,000,-000; but it would give employment to the people of Cuba, teach them habits of industry, be an inducement for them to cultivate their farms, and thus turnish supplies from Montrose, by the explosion of the for the laborers and for market when the road is constructed. This, in my judgment, is absolutely essential to the pacification and development of that great island. It will bring its minerals, lumber and agricultural products to market and open up communication with all parts of the sland with the least possible delay. The road would be a good property, and when it has served its purpose for the government could be sold for its cosc. If such an improvement is not made, the government will no doubt expend rully that amount :

charity.' The secretary says that even if this road is to be built there is a necessity for a large appropriation to relieve the destitute. The question of sanitation of the cities should also have immediate attention and . portion of the taxes collected in the island should be expended for that work.

Estimates. The statement of expenditures and estimates presents some formidable figures. | yacht as guests of Mr. Renedict.

mates for the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1889, are $195,250,377. Of his great estimate the sum of $55,430,909 is charged to pay of the army. The estimate of extraordinary appropriations required for the six months ending June 30, 1899, are $60,177,539, and the estimate for that period, combined with those for the next fiscal year, reach a total of $255,427,917.

At this point the secretary includes in his report the reports of Gen. Miles and all the other generals who participated in active operations. He then takes up the telegraphic and other correspondence relating to the war, and that matter occupies more than a fourth of the secretary's whole report. As already stated, the dispatches are allowed to tell the story of the war without comment as far as possible, although in instances the secretary prefaces them with short notes explanatory of the reasons which led to their transmission.

Recommendations.

Next follow a number of reports of various officers and officials to the secretary of war, some of which are indorsed by the secretary. Of the military academy, for instance, he indorses the recommendation for an increase of the number of cadets by 20 annually, to be appointed by the president, and one by each senator to supply the officers needed for the army of Ample provision chould be made to supply the places of surgeons who fall sick. One of the great mercies of the campaign was the women nurses. The customary reso lution for the distribution of the president's message to the several committees having jurisdiction was adopted and the deficiency bill carrying the appropriations for the extraordinare expenses of the army and navy from January 1 to July 1, 1899, was reported and will be taken up by the house Wednesday. The report of the Hawaiian commission transmitted by the president was laid before the house and referred to the committee on territories, together with a bill offered by Mr. Hitt to carry out the recommendations of the commission. WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—SENATE—No business w s transacted by the senate Wednesday in wish to say that I am ardently opposed open session. to their memories. House-The house Wednesday passed the anti-ticket scalping bill by a vote of 119 to 101. This action is the culmination of a ten years' struggle on the part of the railroads to put an end to the business of ticket scalping. The inter-state commerce commission first called attention to the subject in its report of 1888, and it has been before congress ever since in one form or another. During the last extensive hearings both to the representatives of the railroads and the scalpers, and Mr. Sherman, of New York, secured 174 pledges for the measure. It was, however, deemed inad visable to bring the measure forward until the present session. The debate Wednesday lasted four hours and was spirited upon both sides. None of the amendments offered were adopted and the bill passed as reported by the committee.

LAST ACTIVE WAR SERVICE.

Maj. Gen. Wheeler Will Be Relieved o Further Duty Unless There is a Recurrence of the War.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. - Maj. Gen. Wheeler probably has seen his last active service in the United States army. He was at the war department Wednesday and had a talk with Secretary Alger and Adjt. Gen. Corbin. It is understood that he will be relieved from further active duty unless there is a recurrence of war, but that he will remain on the active list of the United States volunteer army until that army is mustered out of the service by the declaration of peace. ices and will leave Gen. Wheeler free to exercise his functions as a member of the house of representatives during this session.

END OF THE BARD OF AVON. It Is Said Shakespeare's Death Was Ascribed to a "Merry Meeting" with Jonson and Drayton.

The work of the one hundred and twenty-sixth session of the London Medical society was begun on Monday evening at the rooms of the society, in Chandos street, by a short introductory address from the president, Edmund Owen, surgeon to St. Mary's hospital, who remarked that among the many treasures of their library were 15 volumes of manuscript which formed the diary or commonplace book of Rev. John Ward, M. A., Oxon, who was vicar of Stratford-on-Avon from 1662 to 1681. Having taken his M. A. degree in 1652, Ward left Oxford for London to study anatomy at the Barber-Chyrurgeons' hall, in Monkwell street (where Dr. Scarborough, the friend of Harvey, was giving demonstrations), and to acquire a general knowledge of the healing art. Not very many years ago it was quite usual for the professions of divinity and medicine to be combined in the one individual, and it was to be admitted that the custom still lingered in the persons of certain vicars and vicaresses, who dabbling in parochial medicine and quack remedies. Not a few country villages still contained such unorthodox practitioners, who dispensed medical advice to the peril of their too-confiding parishioners and often to the annovance of the local doctor.

But Rev. John Ward was not an empiric of this sort. He had worked diligently to acquire a knowledge of the medical profession, and was doubtless well fitted to practice it under the license which he probably received from his bishop at the time that he entered upon his clerical duties. In his diary Ward asked himself specially to remember that he must study such diseases as are peculiar to women and also to children, so as to be ready at them when I come into the country." He evidently meant to be a good, all-round

But the point to which Mr. Owen specially referred was that on taking up his work in Stratford-on-Avon in the forty-sixth year after Shakespeare's death, Ward must, both as vicar and doctor, have been told of many facts concerning the bard by those who had been intimately acquainted with him. Unfortunately he did not record much about him in those memorandum books; what he did say had been seized upon by the industrious Halliwell-Phillips and duly recorded in his "Life of

This was one of the extracts, and coming as it did from a highly educated man, who had lived in the village of the Shakespeares, it was of undoubted biographical value: "I have heard that Mr. Shakespeare was a natural wit without any art at all; he frequented the plays all his younger time, but in his elder days lived at Stratford and supplied the stage with two plays every year, and for that had an allowance so large that he spent at the rate of £ 1,000 a year"-which in those times was a very considerable amount, corresponding perhaps to £3,000 or £4,000 of to-

Another extract ran as follows: "Shakespeare, Drayton and Ben Jonson had a merry meeting, and, it seems drank too hard, for Shakespeare died of a feavour there contracted." In those times, said Mr. Owen, it was cus tomary to call obscure diseases "feavours," just as they are now called "in fluenzas" or "neuroses." but whatever the actual cause of Shakespeare's death might have been it was evident that local tradition ascribed it, rightly or wrongly, to the effects of that "merry meeting." One had only to think of those three cheery friends together Shakespeare, Ben Jonson and Drayton, to be assured that it was. A pity however, that Ward, unperceived, could not have been there with his notebook. -London Chronicle.

INDIANS SWEAR PIOUSLY.

They Have a God Before Which They Are Licensed to Rend the Air.

It is said that a certain tribe of In dians have a useful divinity, which they call a swearing god. It is very smal! equally ugly and even more convenient. It generally stands on a pedestal or is nailed to the wall of the living-room, and the use of picturesque language in its presence is accounted not a sin, but a pious duty.

Thus, if an Indian bruises his finger or his cavuse steps into a prairie dog hole and wickedly breaks his leg, he confines himself to general remarks on the weather until he reaches home and sees again the comforting face of the grinning devil. Then he becomes sud denly possessed of the eloquence of : mule driver, and the things that he say: would make any ordinary effigy shrivel up with horror, but the swearing god is used to it.

After all, so-called civilized beings are not so far beyond the Indian. When we get angry at a man we burn him in effigy, or hang up a doll whose distorted features convey our impressions of his unworth, and throw stones at it. -N. Y. World.

AN AWFUL DISCOVERY.

It Was One Which Made the Czar of All the Russias Tremble in His Boots.

"Drinkoutski! Come hither, thou!" It was the czar of all the Russias who spoke. In answer to his summons an equerry hastily spurred his steed to the side of the equipage in which his majesty lolled, and made obeisance. "See! That stranger! Who is he?" asked the czar, excitedly. "Who dare walk in Moscow with such a majestic air, spurning the multitude aside as if it were contamination to touch elbows with them. Who is he? Methought my cousin, German William, and myself held letters patent on this spurnology business!"

"Alas, sire!" answered the equerry,

"I know not!" "Well," replied Nicholas, "find out and report to me by six o'clock this evening.

Begone!" His majesty rolled off in his carriage and left the disconsolate equerry to his own thoughts, which were not of the most pleasant, as he would have to hunt up the chief of police of Moscow, Prince Lushemupski, and secure a full report of the stranger and every move he had made since the day he was born. That evening the czar sat in his bombproof study perusing a Russian translation of Punch. It cost him the life of one eminent professor of the Moscow college every month to translate Punch, for no sooner had the professor transformed the witticisms into good Russian than he laid him down and died. But that cut no ice with the czar. He had professors to burn. As he was in the act of placing one of the jokes in a retort for analysis a knock came at the

"Come in!" cried the czar. The chief of police and Drinkoutski entered, saluted and stood silent.

"Hast found out the arrogant stranger's name and all about him?" thundered the czar.

"We have," faltered Drinkcutski. "The chief of police has his record on the slip of paper he holds in his hand." "Approach!" yelled the czar. "I will fathom this mystery! Who can it be, that has the nerve to enter Russia and hold his head so high? Such supercil-liousness I never before beheld!" Saying this he opened the slip and gazed at the following words: Name-Dennis Maginnis.

A Few Holiday Thoughts.

THE shop windows and the columns of the newspapers now give evidence of the approach of Christmas. Shrewd buyers will do well to consult the advertisements. The merchant who advertises has inducements to offer you to get your trade.

Most notes mailed to Santa Cluas go up in smoke.

The mail clerks now hope that the the packages will go by express and the express messengers return the compliment.

The attendance of the various Sunday Schools is larger than it has been for twelve months.

Many lovers will now pass trying days before Christmas-some trying to fall dent of a Kentucky Society formed last out and some trying to make up.

The fellows who write Christmas with an "X" are now having their inning. They should be Xcommunicated from Christmas.

Wives will now pick out a new wrap her on fire, burning her to death. for their hubbies and hubbies will cast around for a kox of Havanas for wifie.

After An Office.

THE Washington correspondent of the Courier-Journal says; "Ex-Congressman W. C. Owens is being strongly pushed by the Kentucky delegation and other influences for an approaching vacancy on the interstate Commerce Commission. Mr. Owens' friends are confident he will in the service. The position goes to a Democrat."

THE Courier-Journal last Sunday printed 105 columns of advertisements, besides many columns of excellent reading matter. The Courier-Journal is by far the best Sunday paper that comes to Paris, and seems to hold its own notwithstanding the attacks of its enemies.

NEARLY BURIED ALIVE.

Such Was the Awful Experience of Many Wounded Soldiers in Cuba.

They talk about these things in whispers as yet-they are not mustered out. you know. Still, members of the hospital corps of the Seventy-first regiment tell some strange, grewsome stories of hospital life between El Caney and Siboney.

Although afraid of a possible courtmartial, members of the command, in close touch with the hospital, tell of one instance where an unconscious yellow fever patient was being buried alive by careless attendants, when the unfortunate man was opportunely rescued.

It was on July 14 of the present year, in the yellow fever hospital, under the care of Dr. Hamilton Jones. One patient died in a tent in which there were six soldiers laid low by the saffron scourge. The two worst cases rested upon litters, covered with the regulation blankets.

One of the assistant stewards, while walking through this particular tent. noticed that one of the stricken soldiers was in the throes of death. He saw that in a few moments the brave boy, who had escaped the deadly Mauser missiles, would breathe his last with the yellow death. These facts were reported to the doctor, who promptly had the matter referred to the steward, Sergt. Meyer, with instructions to get the Cuban "burial detail" and bury the man in the trench as soon as he breathed his last.

It was only a few minutes later that the assistant steward saw the Cubans march off with a litter, bearing a silent D'Auriac, angered by insulting manner of de ing up and down as if in unison with ture, and he half drew a sword—we saw form, covered by a blanket.

"Well, his folks will go in mourning at home," muttered the hospital officia! as he walked carelessly into the tent in giving his parole not to attempt escape, which the soldier had tamely given up his life for his country.

As he threw back the flap of canvas I will hang you as high as Haman." he started back in amazement. There in front of him lay the dead man on his litter bier.

"Whom the d- are they burying?" he yelled, and, rushing from the tent. he ran like a deer to the trench where the Cubans were just throwing the first spadefuls of Cuban soil upon the quiet the forms of a man and woman moving form beneath the blanket. Brushing under cover of the night among the dead the swarthy military sexton aside, he and wounded. They find a golden collar jumped into the trench, pulled the blanket from the quiet figure, and there lay another scourge-stricken soldier. Henry with a retinue, among whom is the unconscious, but still breathing.

Casting the blanket over the unconscious man, the assistant ended the obsequies before they terminated in a horror, one of the terrible errors of the war. The plague-stricken soldier was lifted from his premature grave and borne back to the hospital tent, and his dead comrade placed upon the litter and carried to the shallow grave which had so nearly encompassed a live man in a living tomb .- St. Louis Re public.

FEMININE HANDWRITING.

The Large Style Is Becoming Common and Is Said to Indicate a Breadth of Mind.

Many deductions have been drawn from the increasing size of feminine handwriting. It is quite true that the modern young woman will take up with a few words in her slapdash caligraphy as much room as her maiden aunt would have needed for a judicious epistle upen a serious subject. But it is not fair to argue that, as the size of hands has grown, the letters formed by them must necessarily follow suit. Because sevens are now habitually stocked in gloves and five-and-a-half's quite difficult to obtain, largeness of handwriting is none the less of moral rather than physical significance. The biggest man I know writes a microscopic hand; the woman whose pen describes the largest curves has tiny and dainty fingers. Other observers will find similar results. It is the brain that influences the writing. Viewed from this standpoint, one is able to congratulate the present day woman upon at least one of her characteristics-breadth of mind. She would seem to be emancipating herself from the habit, so distressing in her sex, of paying undue regard to the little things of life.

It should be added, however, that there is a large type of writing, aggressive, obstinate and complicated, with certain well-defined signs of egotism, which, in lieu of breadth, means nothing more elevated than morbid and passionate absorption in one subject only that subject being frequently the gratification of self.

But we are speaking of the normal type. Of this I say, without fear of contradiction, that it indicates a healthy absence of small fault findings and worryings .- Philadelphia Times.

A turn in the avenue at this moment brought us in full view of the gray walls of Bidache, and on the wide stone staircase that led to the great hall we saw the servants of the household assembled. Madame waved her hand in greeting, and the cheer which broke from them was drowned in the boom of the bombard from the keep. As the blue wreaths of smoke curled upward, a little ball ran to the top of the flagstaff on the keep, and the next moment the banner of Tremouille, with the arms of Rochemars of Bidache quartered thereon, spread out its folds to the morning, and madame was come home

We dined an hour or so later than usual-madame, d'Ayen, Palin and myself at the high table, and the rest of the household with all Bidache at the next. Madame, who seemed in nowise fatigued with her long ride, was in the gayest of spirits and rippled with talk. As if thinking she had punished d'Ayen enough she directed all her conversation towards him, and the old beau was in his element in discussing the intrigues of court life, and let me add interesting, for his memory went far and Palin, rising, opened his lips in a puffed dress which earned for the gay lorgthanksgiving, to which all, madame gentlemen of Henry's court the nickincluded, listened devoutly. He looked from one to the other of us with a satirical smile on his thin lips, and then rising made a slight bow, and left us to ourselves. As we returned to our seats from our response to his greeting, I blurted out the

"Who is M. d'Ayen? Why is he here?" "Who is he? It is enough to say he is one of those men who live on the follies of kings. And it is enough to say that his company is forced upon us."

"Thank you, I will do so." Then after a few minutes more of talk we wished each other good-by and parted. As for myself I was on the cross with what I had heard. My mind was racked with doubt, and at last, in despair, I sought my own room to think over the matter. I could make nothing of it, turn which way I would. To me Palin's story was incredible. But yet it explained and made clear so much! It that I would now go to Paris. It would be to save the woman I loved, if possible. How I was to do this, I had no definite idea—the one thing at present in my mind was Paris-Paris. I therefore gave the necessary orders to Jacques to make ready to start at once, and, descending the winding staircase of the tower wherein my room lay, sought the great hall with the view of either finding madame there, or of sending some one with the request to permit my waiting on her to say goodby. The staircase ended in a long dark corridor, hung on each side with trophies of the chase, old armor, and frayed and tattered banners. At the end of this was an arched doorway, hidden by a heavy curtain. I lifted the curtain and passed into the great hall. At first I thought it was empty, but a second glance showed me madame, seated at a small table in the recess of the bowwindow that overlooked the park. Her face, leaning on her hand, was half averted from me, and I caught a glimpse of a small foot resting on one of the lions' heads in which the legs of the table finished. The foot was beatthe impatience of madame's thoughts, the white flash-and then, changing his but I could see nothing of her face beyond its contour. She was, as usual, robed in black, wearing no jewels except a gold collar round her neck. For a moment I stood in silence looking at her, half thinking that here was chance to speak out what was in my heart, and then stilling the words by the thought of how impossible it was for a poor man to woo a rich woman.

As I stood, hat in hand, madame suddenly turned with a little start, and dA'uriac, lying severely wounded, sees hastily concealed something as she and she rose to meet me.

"So soon," she said, as she took it for a moment, her eyes not meeting mine. "Yes-Paris is far-and it will be well for me to be there as quickly as possiwas plenty of time to decide. For a league or so we galloped along the undulating ground which sloped toward the ford near Ezy; but as we began to approach the river, the country, studded with apple orchards and trim with hedgerows of solly and hawthorn, broke into & wild and rugged moorland, intersected by ravines, whose depths were concealed by a tall undergrowth was not to offer my sword to the king of Christ's thorn and hornbeam, whilst the point of discussion; but it struck beyond this, in russet, in somber greens, me that as we had to wait here two and grays that faded into absolute blue, | hours it would be well to inquire if stretched the forests and woods of Anet and Croth-Sorel. As we slid, rather than rode, down said Jacques, "where we can get what we want done, and they push on to Rouvres, where there is good accommodation at the Grand Cerf." In this manner we jogged along, making but slow progress, and the sun was setting when we came into view of the willow-lined banks of the Eure and entered the walnut groves of the outlying forest in which Ezy lay. As we approached we saw that the village was three parts deserted, and the ruined orchards and smokeless chimneys told their own tale. Turning a bend of the grass-grown road we came upon a few children shaking walnuts from a tree, about 200 paces from us, whilst a man and a woman stood hard by observing them. At the sight of us the woman turned to the man with an alarmed gesmind, ran off into the forest. The children followed suit, sliding down the trunk of the tree and fleeing into the brushwood, looking for all the world like little brown rabbits as they dashed into the gaps in the thorn.

As for the woman, she turned slowly, and began to walk toward the village. "They are very bashful here, Jacques," raid, quickening my pace.

"Except the lady, monsieur," and ther we trotted up alongside her.

Reining in, I asked if she could direct caught sight of me. I went up at once, me to the blacksmith's, for there

Finally we stopped before a cottage of some pretensions to size, but decayed and worn, as all else was in this village, which seemed but half alive. Over the entrance to the cottage hung a faded signboard, marking that it was the local hostelry, and to the right was a small shed, apparently used as a workshop, and here the smith was, seated on a rough bench, gazing into space.

He rose at our approach and made as loud: "Morbleu! But it is well we the word "obey." A GOOD DEED COMES HOME TO have time to mend our trouble and "Maitre Palin, there is the king's disapprobation. About a dozen sought into the inn. I threw another coin to Chicago Post.

claimed, resigning myself to circumstances, and dismounting, handed the reins to Jacques. As I did so I heard voices from the inn, one apparently that of a girl, and the other that of a man, and it would seem that she was urging something; but what it was I could not eatch, nor was I curious as to could get some refreshments for ourselves, and a feed for the beasts. For answer to my question I got a gruff "go and ask my daughter," from the smith, who turned as he spoke and began to fumble with his tools. I felt my temper rising hotly, but stayed my arm, and bidding Jacques keep an eye on the horses stepped toward the door of the inn. As I put my hand on it to press it open, some one from within made an effort to keep it shut; but I was in no mood to be trifled with further, and, pushing back the door without further ceremony, stepped in. In doing so I found that it was the girl, who was trying to bar me out. Ashamed of the violence I had shown I began to apologize, whilst she stood before me rubbing her elbow, and her face flushed and red. The room was bare and drear beyond description. There were a couple of rough tables, a filled the chamber. In a corner a man lay apparently asleep, a tattered cloak | nal. drawn over his features, so as to entirey conceal them. I felt in a moment that this was the stranger who had fled on our approach and that he was playing fox. Guessing there was more behind this than appeared, but not showing my suspicions in the least, I addressed the girl:

"I am truly sorry and hope you are not hurt; had I known it was you I should have been gentler. I have but come to ask if I can get some wine for ourselves and food for the horses."

"It is nothing," she stammered, "I am not hurt. There is but a little sour here, and for the horses-the grass that grows outside." "There is some wine there at any rate," and I rested my eye on a horn cup, down whose side a red drop was trickling, and then let it fall on the still figure in the corner of the room. "There is no fear," I continued, "you will be paid. I do not look like a gentleman of the road, I trust."

She shrank back at my words, and it appeared as if a hand moved suddenly under the cloak of the man, who lay feigning sleep in the room, and the quick movement was as if he had clutched the haft of a dagger. [TO BE CONTINUED.]

MIND PICTURES BY TELEPHONE

The Mistake One Man Made as to Another's Appearance and the Strange Result.

"Did you ever notice that when an idea becomes fixed in the min.lit is very difficult to change it, especially in the case of extremely sensitive and highly nervous persons?" asked a Brooklyn expert on nerves. "Not long ago I had a visit from a man who was afraid he was losing his reason because of a very simple persistence of a certain thought or idea which he could not shake off. The history of the case is one often found in cases of hypochondriasis developed from using the telephone. My patient for about a year's time had occasion to telephone every day to a trade customer in New York-Manhattan if you like. The New Yorker had a peculiar high tenor squeak to his voice. and somehow my friend got to picturing him as a little chap with a thin face. This habit grew day after day until the customer took a real shape and form in the mind of my patient, all based, of course, upon his voice. As he talked over the telephone there always was mentally pictured that little chap with the thin face and squeaky voice. Well, one day my patient called at the office of his New York customer, and as he walked into the place and saw a tal!. fat man weighing nearly 300 pounds he could scarcely believe his eyes. When the fat man opened his mouth and talked, my patient says, the squeaky voice with which he was familiar sounded strange and unnatural. He told the owner of the absurd voice, in view of his size, about having pictured him as a little thin person, and there was a good laugh over the odd difference of the reality. "But the next day when my friend used the telephone and the squeaky voice came to him, he had to struggle to get away from thinking of his fat patron as being little and thin. He talked the matter over with his wife and laughed about it, but soon there came a time when he forgot all about the actual existence of his customer. and the little thin-faced chap was again talking to him over the wire. Then it was that he came to me. He feared, he said, that his mind was giving way, because of the persistence of the odd picture of the thin man. I thought the case was easily disposed of, and told my ster. Some years ago a prominent friend to go to New York every day for young local attorney died of alcoholism | a week and visit his fat customer. This He was a talented chap, a brilliant or. | he did, but every time he telephoned the squeaky voice would bring up the mental picture formed before he had set eyes on its owner.

> "I was in despair and my patient was growing gray from worrying when I hit upon the happy expedient of placing a photograph of the fat man on the telephone, where the eye of the patient could rest upon it as he talked. The result was the disappearance forever of the thin chap. My patient, in looking at the picture of the owner of the squeaky voice, got his mind working upon the same lines that would have been followed had he met the fat man face to face the first time he heard his voice. These cases are common every day. We form queerly opposite pietures of men and women we hear over the telephone and never see, but in the great majority of instances the impression is a momentary one, and it is seldom that the mistake is ever forced upon us in the startling way described by the patient I told of.

"The telephone, by the way, has produced very many queer cases of neurasthenia that remain unaccountable excepting on the hypothesis that the new babit brings them into existence. I to give up the use of the 'phone altogether where it had been used to a great extent before."-N. Y. Sun.

PITTING POTATOES.

After All Has Been Done or Said, This Is the Safest Way of Keeping the Tubers.

Potatoes keep better in a pit than enywhere else, but they must be well protected to prevent zero weather from catching them. They should never be covered deeply enough to allow them to become at all heated or they will start to grow. The first covering should be not more than six inches deep and this should not be increased until the ground has frozen enough to bear up a man. Then put on a covering of straw, over the soil already on, and put on more soil, patting it down to make it shed rain. Leave the pit until actual winter has come and the ground is well frozen and then over all put a foot of fresh manure from the stables. Don't be afraid of driving the frost in, for this will not happen. Keep the manure on until the potatoes are needed in the spring, for the covered pit will not thaw out nor will the manure allow it to freeze any more, and the potatoes will not sprout until time for planting in the spring if left in the pit.

Potatoes that are o coused for seed should be placed in a pit by themselves as to leave them undisturbed until out to plant .- Farmers' Voice.

Study the Egg Question.

A poultry breeder says a bushel of corn will produce six pounds of pork worth 25 cents, while this bushel would keep a hen a year, says an exchange. She would lay at least 12 dozen eggs, which, averaging tea cents a dozen, would equal $1.20, and she would rear a brood of chickens worth twice as much more, making a total of nearly five dollars. Experiments made at the Utah agricultural station seem to prove above. Another paper says: "Forty dozen eggs will bring more than a load of hay, which requires a great deal of labor to produce and a good-sized patch of ground to grow, besides lots of sweat." It kept surprisingly, and thereafter large quantities were stacked yearly, until for several years past the out ofdoors stack has furnished ice for creamery and household until about September 1. There being a scarcity of ice this year, I had to use an inferior quality, four or five inches thick. The stack was about thirty feet square and four feet high. It has furnished ice to cool about 300 quarts of milk per day .n the correctness of the statement made creamery, besides refrigerator in house. My method is to spread a few inches of shavings on the ground for the ice to rest on, stack the ice and cover with shavings to a depth of about a foot. terious Way and Leave Furrows Behind Them.

"It had always been my belief that the clam, like the oyster, was a home stayer, growing contentedly to maturity in the place where he was born, and never moving from the spot of his own accord," said a New York man, fond of sports with rod and gun, "but this belief was changed during my last summer's vacation in Maine. I spent several days at Sebec lake, usually starting on my day's fishing excursions from Greeley's Landing, on the south shore. Here for a long distance out the water is shallow, with a sandy bottom. All over this bottom extending out to where it was too deep to be seen were queer (a fence board ripped). The rack part little furrows, such as a man might make in sand with the tip of a walking stick. I knew that they could not have been by eels, which would have left sinuous tracks, while these were straight, and I was puzzled to explain them. At last I asked my boatman, a country boy, bred on the shores of the lake, what caused these furrows.

"'Clams,' he answered, briefly, with a slight tone of wonder in his voice at my ignorance.

"'Clams!' I repeated. 'You don't mean to tell me that clams travel about without legs or fins?" " 'They do, all the same, and I'll show you,' he said, and backed water with his oars, stopping his boat. 'There's one now right under you.' "I looked down into the water, and there, at the very end of a furrow, was a clam resting upright on one end, head down, as I discovered by dipping him up with my landing net. By looking carefully we discovered other clams. If they were moving, it was too slowly for me to detect their progress, but in every case the clam was at the end of a furrow, which he plainly had made, standing on end, head down.

"'They allus travel on their heads,' the boy said. 'They can work along tol'able fast when they've a mind to. I've known one to go the length of this boat in a day.'

"'What's their idea in all this balancing about on their heads?" I asked. Where are they going, anyway?'

"'Dunno. But I guess they're browsin' round for somethin' to eat.' the boy answered, and so far as I have an opinion in the matter I think he guessed right."-N. Y. Sun.

SCIENTIFIC CONSCIENCE.

An Interesting Tale of Two Geologists and an Exceedingly Beautiful Fossil.

Happening to know two men who were deeply interested in geology and who did not know each other a Detroit man brought the two scientists together recently at the house of one of them and then left them to enjoy the occasion. A day or two later he met the host in the case and heard this strange story "Well, Mr. Cooper, that was a fine man you brought out to see me the other night—a fine man. Why, he's as crazy about geology as I am, if not a trifle crazier. We sat up together until after midnight, looking over my specimens and talking about them, and I'm going down to see his cases. He tells me he has almost bankrupted himself indulging his taste for rare and beautiful fossils. A funny thing happened the other night, too; he's a great one-that man! On my library table I had one remarkably beautiful fossiltoo choice to be hidden away in a case and yet too valuable to be left lying around. I needn't tell you what it was, for you don't the diseased portion of the ear. There is know one from another. Your friend does, only one way to cure deafness, and that is however, and he returned again and again to admire this particular specimen. Of course, I enjoyed his enthusiastic appreciation of it, and when he was about to go I said: 'Mr. Badger, you admired this fossil so much I'm going to give myself the pleasure of parting with it to you. Please add it to your collection.' So saying, I extended my hand for the fossil, and behold it wasn't there. On the table and under the table I looked, behind the lamp, and under papers—no fossil—a mysterious disappearance. I felt non-plussed and looked at my guest. He looked We will give One Hundred Dollars for any sheepish, fumbled in the inside of his sacque coat and said: 'Well, I'm glad you are going to give me that fossil. I already had it in my pocket.

As I had often done the same trick myself I couldn't utter a word of protest. 'Well, well,' I said, 'take it along and heartily welcome. "I've annexed fossils myself. Art has no conscience."—Detroit Free Press.

PORK-Mess....

A Race Against Fire.

After a ten days' fight to avoid death, the crew of a steamer from Spain recently arrived in Baltimore. In mid ocean it was discovered that flames were raging in the vessel's hold. For ten long days the crew bravely fought the flames. If men would fight as persistently against disorders of the stomach and digestive organs, there would be fewer premature deaths. The best weapon for such a fight is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is the greatest of tonics, and the best of remedies for kidney, liver, bladder and blood dis-

8 8 8 8 8 8 B B AN AFFAIR THE NATION

It has been said of Americans that they are "a nation of dyspeptics" and it is true that few are entirely free from disorders of the digestive tract, Indigestion, Dyspepsia. Stomach and Bowel trouble, or Constipation.

The treatment of these diseases with cathartic medicines too often aggravates the trouble.

THE LOGICAL TREATMENT

is the use of a remedy that will build up the system, thereby enabling the various organs to act as Nature intended they should. Such a remedy is found in Dr Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People Here is the proof.

In Detroit there are few soldiers more popular and efficient than Max R. Davies, first sergeant of Co. B. His home is at 416 Third Avenue. For four years he was a bookkeeper with the wholesale drug house of Farrand, Williams & Clark, and he says: "I have charged up many thousand orders for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but never knew their worth until I used them for the cure of chronic dyspepsia. For two years I suffered and doctored for that aggravating trouble but could only be helped temporarily.

"I think dyspepsia is one of the most stubborn of ailments, and there is scarcely a clerk or office man but what is more or less a victim. Some days I could eat anything, while at other times I would be starving. Those distressed pains would force me to quit work. I have tried many treatments and remedies but they would help only for a time. A friend induced me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and after taking a few doses I found much relief and after using several boxes I was cured. I know these pills will cure dyspepsia of its worst form and I am pleased to recommend them."-Detroit (Mich.) Journal.

An old adage reads: "There is a place for everything," and for everything to be in its place, the LOUISVILLE DISPATCH should find a place in the home of every DEMOCRAT in the SUNNY SOUTH. The Dispatch is the people's paper, owned by the people, and is always ready to fight for the cause of the people. IT STANDS SQUARELY ON THE CHICAGO PLAT-FORM, without the aid or consent of the Gold Bug Monopolies, and a fair comparson of its news service (now being furnished over leased wires by the New York Sun, the Chicago Inter Ocean and the Northern Press Association) with that of any other paper, will fully verify its Motto, "If you see it in the Dispatch it's so, and if it's so it is always in the Dispatch."

The Dispatch also has a staff of over 300 active correspondents in the South, and will POSITIVELY GUARANTEE MORE THAN DOUBLE THE SOUTHERN NEWS of any other Louisville paper. Get the Dispatch; it gives the news and tells the truth about it.

GREENBACKS or Government Money.

At close of our Civil War in 1865, there appeared in the London Times the following:

"If that mischievous financial policy which had its origin in the North American Republic during the late Civil War in that country, should become indurated down to a fixture, then that government will furnish its money without cost. It will have all the money that is necessary to carry on its trade and commerce. It will become prosperous beyond precedent in the history of civilized nations of the world. The brain and wealth of all countries will go to North America. THAT GOVERNMENT MUST BE DESTROYED OR IT WILL DE-STROY EVERY MONARCHY ON THIS GLOBE."

The famous Hazzard circular, to capitalists in New York, and the Buell Bank circular to United States Bankers, both emanating from London, and the fabulous corruption fund raised in England and Germany, estimated at $1,500,000, were the agents that secured the closing of our mints against

The "walk into my parlor" policy of England, during and since the Spanish War, is the latest evidence of English Diplomacy in shaping the destiny of the United States Government.

Notwithstanding the famine price of wheat, the Spanish War, and fabulous expenditures of money by our government during the past year, gold has increased in value eleven per cent. and all other values decreased in the same proportion.

For a thorough understanding of the money question, or silver issue, the Cincinnati Enquirer has uniformly given evidence of its ability to teach, explain and produce all facts and truth. It is a paper that ought and can be read by all classes with pleasure and profit.
